

Soap Making at Home, Hobby a Business? Recipes and Health Benefits from Ginger Root and Goats milk

making your own soap, you reduce the amount of chemicals you are using in your skin-care products. This is a great option for people with allergies or sensitive skin, as it can reduce irritation caused by the chemicals found in commercial products. There's nothing better than making your own. Soap is a product used for cleaning and personal hygiene made from all-natural ingredients such as plant oils, animal fat, vegetable oils, or other oils such as coconut, castor, or olive oils. It is emulsified through a hot or cold process. Soap was not always used for personal hygiene and bathing. When the Babylonians first made soap in 2800 B.C., it was used for cleaning wool or cotton, dishes, cooking utensils, or for medicinal purposes, and was made from fats and ashes boiled together. There is a wide selection of soap available which serves a variety of different purposes. Most soap is made using the cold process method by a mixture of sodium hydroxide and fatty acids such as beef tallow or olive oil. Beef tallow adds hardness to a soap bar and gives the soap a creamy and rich lather, which may be beneficial over using vegetable oils. This mixture creates saponification, a chemical reaction which results in soap.
