

Charlotte Once Again

1960s England. Caroline Maxwell has felt a presence in her parents ancient home, Stonecroft Manor, for almost as long as she can remember. As a child she encountered another young girl, dressed in strange clothing, roaming the grounds. Her parents dismissed this vision as childhood nonsense but after seeing the young girl again, Charlotte knew that wasn't the case. She decided to do research on Stonecroft, and finds out that a girl lived there who shared her initials: Charlotte Marlowe. But if this young girl is a ghost, why is she still haunting Stonecroft? And how did she die? As Caroline grows up, she sees Charlotte less frequently. But then, as she starts getting ready to leave home and marry her fiancée, Robin, Charlotte begins to appear once again. And it seems there might be some sinister parallels between Charlotte's life and Caroline's. What does Charlotte want? Could she be influencing the present day? Caroline must solve the mystery before it is too late... Adelaide Q. Roby's ambition as a child was to write a book with hard covers and during her childhood she wrote several plays featuring herself and her younger brothers in a series of adventures. Later one of her adult plays was on the point of being produced at a Liverpool theatre when war broke out and it was shelved. She is the author of The Pindars, Siren Song, White Harvest and Sea Urchin, also published by Endeavour Press. Endeavour Press is the UK's leading independent digital publisher.
